ABSTRACT

Characteristics of 23 Kentucky teacher education programs, at institutions which qualify for consideration under the Interstate Certification Contract for classroom teachers, are provided in this report. The process that culminates in institutional accreditation and teacher certification in Kentucky is outlined and is followed by a listing of the teacher education institutions and their accreditation status--state, regional, and National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education (NCATE). Tables provide information on each institution on the availability of: (1) elementary, middle, and high school teacher certification programs; (2) areas of concentration; (3) teaching majors; (4) teaching minors; (5) programs for teacher of exceptional children; (6) administrator and supervisor programs; (7) programs for media specialists, school librarians, reading specialists, guidance counselors, and music teachers; (8) specialized school services; and (9) fifth year programs and continuing education. INTRODUCTION

The primary purpose of this document is to communicate to the other party states the list of programs offered by Kentucky teacher education institutions which qualify for consideration under the terms of the Interstate Certification Contract for classroom teachers. The information on these programs is found on pages 6-12 and is up to date as of July 1, 1981. Also included is the listing of state approved graduate programs for the preparation of teachers, administrators, and other professional school personnel.

The Kentucky State Department of Education applies three sets of standards in the evaluation of programs:

1. The standards of the National Council for the Accreditation of Teacher Education which are officially incorporated as a part of the Kentucky standards.

2. The specific curriculum guidelines for each separate program.

3. A set of more detailed standards relating to admission and selection and to student teaching.

The content and the application of these three sets of standards is substantially equivalent to the standards and processes of the National Association of State Directors of Teacher Education and Certification (NASDTEC); however, the NASDTEC Standards Committee has not made a recent determination of equivalency.

The listing in this document reflects the programs currently offered. Many other programs have been offered previously by various institutions and later discontinued. For information about any previous program, just write or telephone the Division of Teacher Education and Certification, State Department of Education, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601 (502 564-4606).

To our knowledge the officials of the Kentucky teacher education institutions recommend for certification (in-state or out-of-state) only those programs that had state approval at the time they were offered.

Superintendent of Public Instruction

APPROVED PROGRAM APPROACH TO TEACHER PREPARATION-CERTIFICATION
IN KENTUCKY

The approved program approach to teacher preparation-certification in Kentucky involves at least four steps as follows:

1. Development of State Curriculum Standards for Teacher Preparation-Certification

   The teaching profession is the largest of the professions and although its members have much in common, many of the positions they hold differ sufficiently to warrant different types of preparation. For example, a second grade teacher in the elementary schools, a high school mathematics teacher, and a guidance counselor will have much in common in terms of a general educational background, but each of these positions requires special preparation for the peculiar nature of the duties to be performed.

   Whenever a position requires a special program of preparation, a state curriculum guide is developed by means of a cooperative process which involves both the professional and legal agencies. The state curriculum guide is expressed in terms of general principles for program development rather than in terms of specific course titles. The state curriculum guide is then incorporated into the regulations of the State Board of Education at which point it becomes a curriculum standard by which preparation programs are developed by the institutions and evaluated by the State Department of Education.

   In Kentucky the legal responsibility for initiating standards for teacher preparation-certification is vested in the Kentucky Council on Teacher Education and Certification. This Council has representation from the institutions of higher education, both public and private; from the teaching profession, including both administrators and classroom teachers; from lay groups; and from the State Department of Education.

2. Development of Institutional Programs of Preparation in Accordance with the State Curriculum Standards

   The state curriculum standards are translated into appropriate courses and experiences by the teacher preparation institutions. It is at this point that the total resources of an institution are called upon to provide the best program of preparation for a particular position. The program planned by the institution is then submitted to the State Department of Education.

3. Institutional Accreditation and Program Approval

   All colleges and universities which prepare teachers must be approved by the State Board of Education and each of the teacher preparation programs offered must be approved.

The different programs of preparation for the various teaching positions which are developed by the institutions are submitted to the Division of Teacher Education and Certification for evaluation in terms of the state curriculum standards for subsequent approval by the State Board of Education.

4. Teacher Preparation-Certification

The prospective teacher enrolls in an institution which is approved for teacher preparation and which has been approved for the specific program that is desired. The college adviser assists the student in the selection of a program if this decision has not yet been made. Upon satisfactory completion of this "approved program" the institution officially reports that the applicant has completed the approved program of preparation for the specific certificate and recommends that the certificate be issued.

The Division of Teacher Education and Certification then issues the certificate directly to the applicant.
